

Heatmap visualization of the 19x19 Go board showing the probability of a black stone being captured at each intersection. The color scale ranges from dark purple (low probability) to bright orange (high probability). High capture probability is concentrated in the center and along the third and fourth lines from the edges.

